During 2013-14, the Council organised several important conferences, seminars and workshops, including (i) International Summit on Empowerment of Rural Women jointly with AIWC, New Delhi, (ii) Challenges of Poverty Reduction, Food Security and Social Inclusion in SAARC Countries on Collaboration with SAARC Secretariat), (iii) The Emerging Challenges of Indian Agriculture with Special reference to Institutional Credit and Farm Distress, (iv) National Food Security Act: Challenge in Securing Right to Food for the People, (v) Land Governance Assessment, (vi) Issues relating to ART and Strategies for action, (vii) Challenges of Accelerated and Inclusive Economic Growth in Bihar and Jharkhand. Besides, the Council organized the training courses on (i) Research Methodology in Social Sciences, (ii) Capacity Building for Resettlement Management, (iii) Training and Fellowship Programme for ST Lawyers, (iv) Impact of MGNREGS on Rural Development, (v) Orientation Programme for Research Scholars and Faculty Members belonging to SC and other marginalized groups, (vi) Violence and its Habitation in India, (vii) Capacity Building Programme for Social Science Faculty (SC, ST and General).

The important publications brought out during the year were (i) Hyderabad Social Development Papers, (ii) Three Essays on Constitutional Morality and (iii) Agricultural Development in Bihar: Challenges and Opportunities. Besides, the quality of papers included in the Council's Social Change Journal improved significantly.

The Durgabai Deshmukh Memorial Lecture for 2013 was delivered by Dr. S.K. Thorat, Chairman, ICSSR. He spoke on Growth and Its Pro-poor Character in India, during 1993-94-2009-10. Finally several faculty members of the Council enhanced its prestige by publishing research papers and by participating in seminars and conferences as resource persons.

I am extremely thankful to Prof. Muchkund Dubey, President and other members of the Council for their guidance and unwavering support to meet the organisations' goals and objectives.

ORIGIN, VISION AND OBJECTIVES

ORIGIN, VISION & OBJECTIVES

ORIGIN

The Council for Social Development (CSD) completed its 51 years of existence as a vibrant research and social development organisation. Since its inception in 1962, it functioned as an informal group of social workers and social scientists, described as Study Group, under the chairmanship of the legendary freedom fighter, social worker, academic and planner, Dr. Durgabai Deshmukh. The preamble of the CSD's Constitution clearly stipulates its objectives: "the need for a systematic study of the play of social dynamics in the process of growth, to bring the social aspects of development into focus and to relate them properly to economic growth at various stages."

In 1964, a formal status was given to the Council as an affiliate of the India International Centre and in April, 1970, it was registered under the Societies Registration Act of 1860 with Dr. C. D. Deshmukh as President and Dr. (Smt.) Durgabai Deshmukh as Executive Chairperson and Honorary Director. After their demise, the office bearers were elected from among the members of the Council. Presently, Prof. Muchkund Dubey is the President and Ms C. P. Sujaya, the Vice President.

With a view to expanding its activities to the South, a branch of the Council was set up in 1967 in Hyderabad, which was later upgraded to a Regional Office. In 1980, the ICSSR sanctioned a recurring annual grant to the Southern Regional Centre (SRC) to expand its activities. The support of the Reserve Bank of India to establish an Integrated Micro Projects Applied Research and Training (IMPART) Centre in the name of Dr. C. D. Deshmukh under its Endowment Scheme in 1985 further strengthened the Council in diversifying its activities. The SRC has adequate financial and managerial autonomy to work independently.

Consistently, over the years, CSD's main endeavour has been to rectify the lack of focus on social development among the Indian planners. Durgabai's introduction to the Planning Commission's volume on Social Welfare in India (1964) and her lectures at the Asian Institute of Economic Development in Bangkok (1964) give ample evidence of her focus on the need to counter the neglect of women, children and the disadvantaged sections in the planning process. This vision acquires critical significance today because the growth preoccupation of the Indian policy-makers has become so over-powering that the agenda of social development gets only lip service. It also encourages a healthy debate on whether the right-based laws, that have of late inspired policy discourse, actually constitute substantial policies to uplift the deprived people and seriously address the problems of the disadvantaged sections.

The vision of the founders continues to inspire the Council's engagement in intellectual efforts to influence government policy, social action and public discourse for the advancement of the socially disadvantaged.

VISION

The Council continues to be inspired by the vision of its founders to build a just society on the guiding principles of secularism and equality, identity and justice at the core of all its intellectual and practical work. The attainment of the goal of "Antyodaya" or "wiping every tear from every eye", set before the Nation by Mahatma Gandhi, is the philosophical foundation of the council. The best route towards achievement of this vision is to contribute to the amelioration of the plight of the poorest, deprived and marginalized sections of the population. As part of the events to mark the Golden Jubilee of the CSD, a critical brainstorming session was held at Surajkund on April 2, 2013 to recalibrate the Council's programme/projects and fine-tune its modalities for implementation, taking into account the changes over the years in the field of social development. The Council renewed the vision of its founders in the Surajkund session and reiterated that it shall continue to engage in intellectual efforts to influence government policy, social action and public discourse for the advancement of the socially disadvantaged, marginalized and oppressed sections of the society.

OBJECTIVES

In addition to the Council's prescribed role of focusing the public and policy discourse on a social development vision aimed at uplifting the quality of life of the poor, oppressed and marginalized sections of the Indian society, the Council's brainstorming session at Surajkund resulted in identifying the following new thrust areas and objectives:

1. CSD will study the continuing trend of the retreat of the State from the broad field of social development and the resulting privatization of social services that has led to further decay and dismantling of the public sector infrastructure, built for sustaining social development and dispensing social goods and services. The impact of the absence of long-term objectives and commitment of resources for achieving social targets and abandonment of structural and systemic approaches to dealing with social problems will now be the focus area of investigation and debate for the Council.
2. CSD will formulate ideas about how to bring the focus back on the disadvantaged sections at a time when the State seems to be serving the interest of the few.
3. CSD will study the impact of the erosion of bureaucratic structures on account of the retreat of the State and the simultaneous adoption of the PPP mode of building infrastructure and setting up institutions.

4. CSD will closely examine whether the right-based approach to social development is really different from the entitlement approach, and whether these two approaches differ from welfare and charity approach. A study of this problem has acquired urgency in view of the serious problem of implementation that has arisen in the execution of the Right to Education.
5. CSD will build capacity as a 'brain trust' for the people and will consistently undertake national stocktaking of the direction in which the country is moving in the social field and present alternatives before the government and the people.
6. CSD will study and evaluate the efficacy of the numerous experiments that are under way as attempts by people to cope with the distress reality through self-help measures. This includes the revival of the cooperatives.
7. CSD will study the implications of the absence of people from the heart of policy-making or the lack of involvement of the beneficiaries in conceptualization, formulation, evaluation and implementation of the programmes meant to ameliorate their socio-economic conditions and suggest alternative approaches to bring about a change in the situation.
8. CSD will continue its research and advocacy work designed to improve the conditions of the socially disadvantaged groups – dalits, adivasis, minorities, women, children, marginal and poor farmers and workers in the unorganized sector
9. CSD will intensify its activities in its core areas of education health, agriculture, rural development and human rights, especially of the weaker sections.
10. CSD will build capacity for research, advocacy and training in the areas of – a) sustainable development (water, energy, environment, climate change, land use and agriculture); b) Poverty in the process of urbanization (exclusionary character of the cities; marginalization of the poor; institutionalization and standardization of inequality in urban areas through institutions of local self-government especially resident welfare associations; social dynamics of small cities and towns and how they are being marginalized in the policies and programmes for urban development; and urban-rural divide; C) Impact of science and technology on social development.

RESEARCH

One of the major activities of the Council since its inception has been conducting meaningful research in the area of social development.

Researches have been conducted in crucial areas of development, such as literacy and education, health and population, agriculture, rural development, environment and weaker sections of society – dalits, adivasis, women and children

RESEARCH PROJECTS COMPLETED

HEALTH:

Social Determinants of Health

- Sponsoring Agency: Council for Social Development
- Project Director: Prof. Imrana Qadeer
- Associated Academic Staff: Dr. Arathi P M and Mr. Sourindra Ghosh
- Date of Project Completion: January 2014
- Objectives: To capture caste, class, gender intersectional ties in the inequalities in health
- Methodology: Literature review and unit level data analysis of NFHS rounds by using statistical tools
- Findings and Recommendations:
 - a) The lower castes have higher odds of adverse outcome in almost all parameters such as women's health; food intake etc. compared to their upper caste counterparts. Class also largely has the same effect, i.e. lower classes having higher odds of adverse outcomes compared to upper classes. But that effect is not as strong as caste.

- b) The strongest socio-economic group, i.e. the rich/upper-middle, non-lower caste has least of odds (those of which are statistically significant, $p<0.05$) of adverse outcomes among almost all the parameters mentioned above. For most of the parameters, the weakest socio-economic group i.e. poor lower caste has the highest odds of adverse outcomes. This means, the confluence of class and caste is the strongest at the margins, i.e. the extreme intersections of socio-economic power on one hand and deprivation on the other – the rich/middle, non-lower caste and poor lower caste respectively.
- c) Child health indicators have shown signs of aggravating socio-economic and gender disparity in NFHS-3 vis-à-vis NFHS-2. Parameters of women's health and women's food intake regularity have not shown definite signs of deterioration in terms of socio-economic disparity, but it hasn't improved either.

Strengthening Delhi State's Maternal Health Systems: Maternity delivery services in institutional facilities

- Sponsoring Agency: Council for Social Development
- Project Director: Ms. Nalini Visvanathan
- Date of Project Completion: December 5, 2013.
- Objectives:
 - a) To examine how socially disadvantaged women residing in Delhi's Northeast District viewed their most recent birthing experience in an institutional setting, largely but not exclusively public hospitals.
 - b) To identify and explore system-based barriers for institutional delivery faced by socially disadvantaged women.
- Methodology: Focused group interviews were conducted with ASHAs at different sites in Northeast and Shahdara Districts. The protocol was developed around a model of quality maternity care and administered to 43 women who had delivered within the last six months. Data have been processed for qualitative and quantitative analysis.

- Findings and Recommendations:

- a) Socially disadvantaged women who choose to deliver in public hospitals are subjected to varied forms of abuse, largely verbal and emotional, from the medical staff. There is considerable extortion of funds from patients, including the poorest ones, which enlarges the unanticipated expenditure for the delivery. A major human rights violation is the refusal of admission to women in labour on technical grounds as well as for lack of beds; they are sent home or asked to go to another facility.
- b) ASHAs provide ante-natal care (ANC) services to the women and accompany them to the dispensary for ANC check-ups and sometimes to the hospitals as well at the time of delivery. These workers are often demeaned by rude and verbally abusive treatment from both health professionals and the support staff.
- c) The strengthening of ANC services through the ASHAs with due recognition for their critical role.
- d) The sensitisation of the hospital administration to varied forms of abusive treatment.
- e) Increased capacity of crowded facilities through higher doctor-patient ratios and more beds.

AGRICULTURE:

Institutional Credit, Farm Productivity and Farm Distress

- Sponsoring Agency: Bharat Krishak Samaj
- Project Director: Ankita Goyal and Dr. T. Haque
- Associated Academic Staff: Purtika Kalra
- Date of Project Completion: July 2013
- Objectives:
 - a) To analyse the trends in credit disbursed to agriculture and allied activities in India.
 - b) To examine farm size category wise credit availability from various sources (institutional and non-institutional) in selected states.
 - c) To find out the credit related problems of farmers in areas where there is high incidence of suicides by farmers.
- Methodology: The study was based on both secondary and primary data. The secondary was collected from various publications of RBI, NABARD and the Ministry of Agriculture Govt. of India. For primary farm level data, a household survey was conducted in Ludhiana and Sangrur in Punjab and Buldhana and Yavatmal in Maharashtra with sample of around 400 farm households. Farming households in each block was divided into three categories, based on their net cultivated area (NCA) into small (less than 2 hectares), medium (between 2 and 4 hectares) and large (above 4 hectares). Information was also gathered from banks and agricultural credit institutions.

- Findings and Recommendations:

- a) The share of small and marginal farms in total institutional credit has been declining over time.
- b) The farmers who borrow money from private money lenders remain perpetually in debt trap.
- c) Only about 10 per cent farmers in Sangrur, 37 per cent in Ludhiana, 21 per cent in Yavatmal, and 44 per cent in Buldhana have Kisan Credit Cards.
- d) Loan waiver from time to time has encouraged even well-off farmers not to pay back their loans.
- e) The recommendations include (a) improvement in the availability of institutional credit to small and marginal farmers, (b) reduction in the rate of interest by co-operatives and banks, and (c) improvement in farm productivity and profitability for increasing the risk free credit worthiness of farmers.

Study on Agricultural Pricing policy in India

- Sponsoring Agency: Centre for Sustainable Agriculture (CSA) and Alliance for Sustainable and Holistic Agriculture (ASHA)
- Project Director: Ankita Goyal
- Date of Project Completion: December 2013

- Objectives:

- a) To identify the shortcomings in the method of estimating cost of production of various crops by CACP.
- b) To identify the flaws in the existing methods of fixation of minimum support prices (MSP) by the government.
- c) To find out the extent to which MSPs are implemented.

- Methodology: The study was based mainly on the review of the various reports of the CACP and the secondary data collected from the Directorate of Economics & Statistics, Govt. of India, Department of Food and Public Distribution and DACNET, Ministry of Agriculture, Government of India.

- Findings and Recommendations:

- a) The study looked into the performance of procurement agencies appointed by the government for procurement of foodgrains, oilseeds, cotton etc from the farmers, namely, Food Corporation of India (FCI), National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation of India (NAFED) and Cotton Corporation of India (CCI). It was seen that these agencies are active only in certain regions and only for certain crops, while most of the backward regions see little or no procurement by these agencies.

- b) Since cost of cultivation of the same crop is different in different regions, the MSP generally falls short of the cost of cultivation in most regions, thus defeating the very purpose of providing farmers with incentive prices to produce more.
- c) MSP should be fixed realistically to cover at least the total cost of Production in high cost region and give adequate margin over cost in other states.

TRIBAL WELFARE:

An Evaluation Study of the scheme of 'Market Development of Tribal Products and Produce' in India

- Sponsoring Agency: Ministry of Tribal affairs
- Project Director: Dr. Sonali Mukherjee
- Date of Project Completion: March, 2014

Objectives:

- a) To study the effectiveness of the strategy and actual implementation of the Action Plan adopted by TRIFED during the XI Five Year Plan period for market development of tribal products and produce in India
- b) To analyze the outcome of training programmes/workshops etc. if any, conducted by TRIFED.
- c) To identify gap between the amount of financial support given to TRIFED by the Ministry of Tribal Affairs and actual requirement of TRIFED to carry out its mandate.
- d) To study whether the scheme "Marketing Development of Tribal Products/Produce" had practical bearing for improving socio-economic conditions of STs; how far has the scheme succeeded in attaining the goal of market development of tribal products; and how the benefit has accrued to the targeted beneficiaries i.e. the tribal population of the country.

- e) To assess impact of the scheme in ameliorating the socio-economic condition of the tribals.
- f) To study effectiveness in providing policy inputs to the Ministry as well as State Welfare Departments for successive implementation of the scheme.
- g) To study the outcome of any motivation programme for the tribal people for producing tribal products /produce.

- Methodology: The study was planned at two levels- one at the policy level, which is detailed in the Roadmap of TRIFED and the other at ground level where TRIFED is actually performing its act. Fieldwork was conducted in the three states of Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh and Andhra Pradesh. In each state, two districts were identified for the study.

Findings and Recommendations:

- a) The support extended to tribal artisans under the scheme is highly inadequate from the point of their sustainable livelihood. Lack of proper marketing arrangement for tribal produce is one of the key constraints in generating sustainable livelihood system in tribal areas.

- b) Tribals artisans and MFP gatherers need to be provided a sustainable livelihood strategy through skill upgradation and platform to sell their goods. TRIFED should identify its target group itself. Develop a database of tribal population with their livelihood strategies.
- c) Convergence among State agencies is absolutely essential for TRIFED to make its presence at the grassroot. Also this process has to be sustainable.
- d) There has to be a monitoring and evaluation segment in each of their activities for effective nailing of the problem areas and providing better policy input to the Ministry.
- e) A raw material bank could be set up, which would provide material on credit at concessional rates.
- f) Budget needs to be revised. With staff strength of 336 employees, TRIFED is saddled with their salaries and perks, which has to be separately taken care of by the Ministry of Tribal Affairs.

EDUCATION:

Project on a National Campaign for an Inclusive Implementation of RTE 2009

- Sponsoring Agency: Oxfam India and UNICEF India
- Project Director: Ambarish Rai, National Convenor, RTE Forum
- Associated Academic Staff: Parul Gupta, Research Coordinator, RTE Forum
- Date of Project Completion: Activities for one year completed

• Objectives:

- a) Bringing all networks, agencies and organisations working for marginalised sections, teachers' unions and mass movements together for advocating effective implementation of the RTE Act and making it a political agenda
- b) Raising the issue of inadequate financing of education and advocating enhanced allocation to ensure equitable and quality education for all
- c) Supporting the process of synergy of capacity building of SMCs across the country to enable their emergence as an important factor in support of the implementation of the RTE Act across the country

- Methodology:
- a) The RTE Forum runs a national campaign for equitable and quality education for all children in the country and, therefore, works towards reaching out to all the stakeholders by engaging them in various activities.

b) During 2013-14, the RTE Forum took initiative to set up the formal structure of operations and management. For this purpose, a 4-member Task Force was formed. Besides, new states got engaged in the RTE discourse namely, Chattisgarh, Karnataka, Uttarakhand, West Bengal, Tamil Nadu and Pondicherry.

c) A National level meeting of existing and newly created state chapters was conducted to bring about a common understanding of issues pertaining to RTE Act and for its implementation at the ground level and to prepare future action plan for strong interventions.

d) A study has been conducted on functioning of SMCs and modalities of its formation.

e) Regular Media Conferences took place.

f) RTE Forum participated in the state stocktaking conventions to know the scenario in states.

• Findings and Recommendations:

a) An urgent meeting should be convened of the National Development Council (NDC) by the Prime Minister and bringing the Chief Ministers of the States to plan for the implementation of the Act's provisions.

b) A national roadmap should be prepared and regular review by the NDC in the form of a white paper whereby all schools meet all the norms of the Right to Education Act as per the roadmap.

c) The budget for elementary education should be enhanced in order to deliver on the commitments made.

d) A systematic pan-national mechanism for concurrent review of the status of implementation of the ACT should be developed

e) Centre should initiate process urgently through Centre-State consultative mechanisms for ownership by states as education is a concurrent list subject.

f) Special training for out-of-school children needs to be provided in numbers commensurate with the actual numbers of out-of-school children.

g) There is a need for review of the curriculum and textbooks in the schools to ensure that they are of a level commensurate with the actual learning levels of the students.

h) There should be awareness building campaign about the spirit of the Act with department officials that are tasked with its implementation. Also, Community awareness on the Act needs to be deepened further.

- i) The rich diversity of religion, culture, leadership and contribution of Adivasi, Muslim and Dalit communities to school curriculum should be recognised and all children and teachers should be sensitised in this regard.
- j) There should be stronger regulatory framework for private schools along with transparency and accountability measures.

through consolidation of existing horizontal and vertical network and linkages within the production process or through creation of new arrangements, thereby enhancing social capital.

- c) To assess the socio-economic impact of GI implementation on the weavers in terms of enhancement in productivity, wages, employment; access to market in terms of increase in sales and prices of products.

LIVELIHOOD:

Socio-economics of Geographical Indications in Indian Handloom Sector: A Case Study of Pochampally

- Sponsoring Agency Indian Council of Social Science Research
- Project Director: Dr. Soumya Vinayan, Assistant Professor
- Date of Project Completion: August 2013
- Objectives:
 - a) To identify the opportunities and challenges in the implementation of Geographical Indications (GI) in the handloom sector, with particular reference to Pochampally ikkat.
 - b) To identify and study the emergence of institutional mechanism or governance structure for GI implementation

Methodology:

- a) The study was based on the analysis of both secondary and primary data. A primary survey was carried out in Nalgonda District of Andhra Pradesh. A list of weavers working with Pochampally Handloom Weaver's Cooperative Society Limited and Pochampally Handloom Tie and Dye Silk Sarees Manufacturer's Association since GI registration in 2004 was collected. 200 weaver households were the target group of the study. In addition, 150 weaver households (from within and outside cooperative fold) from villages within 20 kilometre radius of Pochampally were selected randomly to form control group.
- b) Strategic interviews were held with different government bodies. Focus Group Discussion with various stakeholders such as traders (yarn, dye and chemicals), pre-loom workers (warpers, sizers, winders) were undertaken.

- Findings and Recommendations:

- Operation of GI in India was at a very nascent stage. Even though the legislation was passed in 1999, the Rules became operational only in 2003. Since then, there has been considerable growth in the number of goods applied for and registered both from India and abroad. Nonetheless, the levels of awareness about the Act have been low also there was a concentration of applications and registrations from South India.
- The need is to evolve a mechanism at institutional level to streamline the operation of GI to realize its full potential of creation of value through improved market access and thereby boost rural development. Two major phases in the operation of GI Activities can be identified – Pre-GI and Post-GI.
- The study suggests short-term and long-term policy recommendations. Creation of a common logo for GI products; increased levels of public awareness; identification of products with potential by community-based organizations; facilitation by government institutions; stake in ownership by primary producers, are some of the short-term measures suggested. Long-term measures include amendments in the Act to issue public notice about advertised and registered products (akin to Land Acquisition Act); mandatory provision for registration under Part A and B and institutional mechanism for monitoring and supervision.

Mining Closure and the Issue of Livelihood: A Case Study of Orissa

- Sponsoring Agency: ICSSR under Research Promotion Scheme
- Project Director: Dr. Sujit Kumar Mishra, Associate Professor
- Date of Project Completion: March 2014
- Objectives: To study the livelihoods of people in mining communities shift pre, during and post mining operations
- Methodology: The study involved a three-pronged approach while collecting information: (a) conducting a field survey; (b) collection of data from secondary sources and discussions with officials in government, non-officials, NGO representatives and local leaders in the area; and (c)

Focus Group Discussions. The primary data has been collected from 24 mining villages from 500 different types of stakeholders of Lead Mine, Sargipalli of the state Odisha, India.

- Findings and Recommendations:

- a) Highly diversified nature of the local economy during mining was missing after the closure.
- b) Voluntary retirement scheme (VRS) of the employees, was a conspiracy and some middlemen including the union were confusing the common men. The greatest losers in the entire process were the third category of people who used to derive their livelihood from the local economy e.g. milk man, washer man, barber, hotel, kirana shop, cycle repairing shop, pan shop and domestic workers.
- c) The decision to close the mine was a sudden process. Formal notification was also not circulated to the people. For imparting skill based training, a need assessment was not conducted. It was completed based on the availability of the specialisation of the training imparting institute. From the study it is evident that the VRS took place in 2 phases – in the year 1991 and 2001. However the training was imparted in 2004 only. So the training is of no use to the people.

- d) Mine closure should be a gradual process with sufficient information so that people will have sufficient time to strengthen their adaptive capacities to earn their livelihood in a sustainable manner.

RESEARCH PROJECTS ONGOING

HEALTH:

Food and Nutrition Study

- Sponsoring Agency: Council for Social Development
- Project Director: Imrana Qadeer
- Associated Academic Staff: Dr. Arathi P. M and Mr. Sourindra Ghosh
- Expected Date of Project Completion: December 2014
- Objectives: An Analysis of the state and national level patterns of food consumption as well all identifying various components of food, viz. calorie, protein etc, which is derived from consuming different food items. The main purpose of the study is to observe how social determinants, like caste, class, religion, or work and labour conditions affect these outcomes. We are using NSSO Nutrition Round (large sample) unit level data for our analysis.
- Methodology: Decoding and analysis of Nutritional Surveys of NSSO unit level data and review of literature.
- Status: Five rounds of NSSO data have been extracted and select food items converted into a form that helps analyse data systematically. Besides the food items have been decomposed into respective nutritional components.

A Study on IVF Clinics in Kerala

- Sponsoring Agency: --
- Project Director: Dr. Arathi PM
- Expected Date of Project Completion: June 2015
- Objectives: To understand the ethical practices followed in IVF clinics in Kerala; to explore the socio-economic background of actors in the IVF clinics; trace the regional variations in clinical practices of assisted reproductive technology use
- Methodology: In-depth interviews of IVF patients, surrogates, hospital authorities, clinicians; and literature review
- Status: A preliminary field work has been done in Kerala therefore conducts the campaign by reaching out to all the stakeholders both at State and national level. This year's focus would be on formalising the structure of the Forum and moving in direction of National federation of SMCs for deepening the roots of advocacy.

- Status: Within three months of the projects, RTE Forum has reviewed the status of the implementation of the RTE Act since its enactment, carved out a framework for its mission and vision for advocacy, developed key points for the strategy for coming years, and is working on various emerging issues such as crisis of governance as discernible from Bihar's mid-day meal tragedy.

LAND GOVERNANCE:

India Land Governance Assessment Framework (LGAF - India)

- Sponsoring Agency: The World Bank, Washington D.C
- Project Director: Dr. T. Haque
- Associated Academic Staff: Ms. Jaya Lekshmi Nair
- Expected date of project completion: September, 2014
- Objectives: The main objective of this project is to assess the gaps in the implementation of various land related policies listed below in selected states and suggest appropriate measures for bridging the gaps:

- a) Land rights recognition
- b) Rights to forest and common lands & rural land use regulations
- c) Urban land use, planning, and development
- d) Public land management
- e) Transfer of public land to private use follows a clear, transparent, and competitive process
- f) Public provision of land information: registry and cadastre
- g) Land valuation and taxation
- h) Dispute resolution
- i) Review of institutional arrangements and policies

- Methodology: This project is being implemented in six states of India namely, Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Jharkhand, Karnataka, Odisha and West Bengal. In each state, there is a nodal institution to help conduct the study, the report of which will be validated at a workshop at the state level, in which the State Govt. officials, NGOs and academicians will participate. Finally, the State reports will be synthesized into a national report. The CSD is the National Secretariat of the project.

- Status: The draft report is being written.

Land and Livelihood Initiatives - Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Odisha, Karnataka and West Bengal

- Sponsoring Agency: National Institute of Administrative Research, Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration (LBSNAA)
- Project Director: Dr. T. Haque
- Associated Academic Staff: Gitesh Sinha
- Expected date of project completion: June, 2014

Objectives:

- a) To analyse the impact of recent land and livelihood initiatives in selected states.
- b) To suggest measures for improvement in the implementation of land and livelihood schemes.

Methodology:

- a) The study is being conducted in five states, namely Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Karnataka, Odisha and West Bengal. Two districts from each state have been selected where beneficiaries of distribution of government land and other similar kind of schemes of government have been interviewed.
- b) The total sample size is 2000 beneficiaries of distribution of the government land/distribution of patta land and other similar kind of schemes of government. i.e., 200 beneficiaries per district. Besides, 5 case studies from each district and detail were conducted.

- Status: Primary data have been collected and data analysis is in progress

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT:

Economics, Ecology and Development: Women's Roadmap for Uttarakhand

- Sponsoring Agency Indian Council for Social Science Research
- Project Director Anamika Priyadarshini
- Associated Academic Staff Prashant Mishra and Purtika Kalra
- Expected date of Project Completion: January 1, 2016.
- Objectives:
 - a) To document the role of women in socio-political and economic life of Uttarakhand and underline the absolute criticality of a sustainable development model which addresses the topographical requirements and specific needs of the hill state.

- b) To highlight the important link between women's participation in the various political and social movements and the strong desire such movements reflected for adoption of an alternative, sustainable and ecologically sensitive model of development in the specific context of Uttarakhand.
- c) To link the real life experiences of women in rural as well as urban centres in Garhwal and Kumaon region of Uttarakhand with the larger development discourse in the state.

- Methodology: The research will begin with a qualitative method in form of preliminary survey conducted with the potential research partners. This would be followed by an ethnographic study and some PRA (Participatory Rapid Appraisals). While quantitative method would allow us to get an overview of the general understanding of a larger group of research participants, in-depth interview conducted during ethnographic research would facilitate us in learning the lived experiences of those lives where violent implications of development discourse materializes in its crudest form. Finally, PRA exercises like FGD, Institutional Analysis, Historical Transect etc. would help us in understanding the dynamics between smaller group of research participants. It would also allow us to learn about the research participants' common understanding of issues, and experience the ways they interact with each other and debate on various issues.

- Status: Secondary Data Analysis is done. Currently finalising questionnaire, formulating field research team, preparing to begin preliminary survey from May, 2014

Low Female Age at Marriage in Andhra Pradesh

Building Strategies for the Protection of Civil & Political Rights of Adivasi Communities

- Sponsoring Agency Unitarian Universalist Holdeen Hivos Just India Fund
- Project Director Prof. Kalpana Kannabiran, Regional Director
- Expected date of Project Completion : May 2014
- Objectives: The main aim of the project is to address civil and political rights of Adivasi communities in India.
- Methodology:
 - a) The approach to addressing Civil and Political Rights is in three stages:
 - b) The first involves the development of legal practice guides for lawyers and activists on issues pertaining to civil liberties, the rights of human rights defenders against arbitrary arrest, detention and degrading punishment, both by state and non state actors with a focus on special protections for Scheduled Tribes, Scheduled Castes, and women. The guides included not only legal procedures but also strategies employed in actual cases. The idea is to map successful strategies and the range and types of litigation. This involves interviews with litigants and lawyers, so that we are able to compare individual experiences with the case record.

- c) The next stage is identifying activists and lawyers at the district and state levels to be trained in the use of the practice guides, preparing a training curriculum for them based on research and materials already available, and undertaking these trainings in a highly targeted way.
- d) In addition, where research findings point to the possibility of litigation to solve problems, either PILs, cases in local courts or petitioning local/statutory/constitutional authorities, are to be initiated, with the project taking the responsibility for preparing the background brief for the lawyers and identifying lawyers willing to appear. Other strategic litigation may involve serious cases that arise during the grant period and correspond with strategies and approaches covered in the practice guides.

Realising Social and Economic Rights of Adivasis

- Sponsoring Agency: Ford Foundation
- Project Director: Prof. Kalpana Kannabiran, Regional Director
- Associated Academic Staff: Dr. N. Vasanthi, Mr. D. Sunder Raj, Mr. B. Ramesh
- Expected date of Project Completion: July 2015

- Objectives: The primary aim of this research programme is to promote positive compliance to the framework of economic and social rights for adivasi communities along several axes, and to systematically build knowledge in this area of the complex network of protections that exists on paper and, therefore, must be translated into rights practice.
- Methodology:
 - a) The proposed programme will be located for the most part in Andhra Pradesh, although the questions it seeks to raise and the results of the project initiatives will have a national relevance. The field studies will primarily focus on Andhra Pradesh, except for the policy research. It might be apt to describe the Andhra-national distribution as a 70:30 distribution. Through this research programme, CSD seeks to build partnerships at different levels: With community based networks, With other NGOs working in Andhra Pradesh among adivasis, With law schools, With independent research centres, With judicial training institutions and government research institutes, With independent advocates, researchers and academics with interest and experience in adivasi rights issues.
 - b) In carrying out this programme, CSD's goal will be to strive to achieve a shift in the knowledge base with respect to adivasi communities by translating information into knowledge both for adivasi communities and in relation to them. To this end, it will involve: Collaborative action-oriented, participatory and policy research; Rights advocacy and rights education at the community level; Documentation of dialogic processes, good practices and problems through film; Curriculum development through the formulation of courses for law schools and social science departments in universities; Student internship programmes; Law Clinics on adivasi rights, Strategic Litigation.
- Status: As part of the project, field visits, exposure visits have already been conducted. Public seminars, Internal seminar have been organised. Workshop on Legal Clinics and Lawyers Refresher Course (co-supported by UUHHJIF below) has also been organised. Fellowship programme for Lawyers is under way. Report writing is on the way.

Labour and Employment in the Rural - Urban Continuum

- Sponsoring Agency ICSSR, New Delhi
- Project Director Prof. D. Narasimha Reddy, ICSSR National Fellow, CSD
- Expected date of project completion July 2015
- Objectives: The aim of the study of is to provide insights on the emerging consensus towards rural-urban continuum.
- Methodology: The study makes use of both secondary and primary data. Through a review of development theories, the explanation of rural transformation and overall economic development/modernisation in terms of spatial and sectoral changes in the structure of employment and output is undertaken. The contesting views on rural-urban divide are reviewed and the emerging consensus towards rural-urban continuum is examined with a view to developing a conceptual framework. Based on the NSS data, the emerging trends in rural employment structure and rural labour markets are analysed. Within the framework of structural change, important features like the sectoral changes in the rural production structure, growth and changing structure of rural employment with a focus on rural non-farm employment; social, gender and quality dimensions of changes in rural employment structure; changes in labour market institutions and wages; earnings and poverty levels of different groups of rural labour are analysed.

A Study of MGNREGS in Selected Villages of Andhra Pradesh

- Sponsoring Agency
Reserve Bank of India
- Project Director Prof. S. Indrakant, RBI Chair Professor, CSD
- Associated Academic Staff
Mr. P. Sathaiah
- Expected date of project completion: September 2014

- Objectives:

- a) To examine the social composition of wage-seekers and benefits derived by them in terms of days of employment and wages earned;
- b) to study the nature of assets created through works carried out under MGNREGS and benefits derived by the village economy;
- c) to investigate the impact of MGNREGS on important variables like market wage rate, gender wage rate differentials, etc; and
- d) to examine the scope for coordinating MGNREGS work with cultivation activities.

Methodology:

- a) The present study makes use of both primary and secondary data. The secondary data has been used to study the trends in days of employment generated and wages received by wage-seekers at the state-level, regional-level and district level. Further, regression analysis has been used to study the impact of MGNREGS on market wage rate and gender wage differentials. In the analysis, both slope and intercept variables have been incorporated. Two performance indicators, viz. (1) Number of days of employment generated per household and (2) Average wage rate per person per day have been used to select three districts, i.e. (1) A district having relatively higher employment, (2) A District having average employment, and (3) A district having relatively lower employment. Accordingly, the three selected districts are: (1) Ranga Reddy, (2) Nizamabad, and (3) Warangal. Within each selected district, two mandals have been selected. Further, within each selected mandal, one village is selected. In all, six villages have been selected for the study.

- Project Director Dr. Meera Velayudhan, Post Doctoral Fellow
- Expected date of project completion : November 2015
- Objectives: Analysis of institutions (established Trade Unions of agricultural workers, coir workers, fish workers, middle and large farmers) who are now major political actors and of the new forms of collectives since 1990s. This study will consider (a) how they mediate struggles and the agency of actors ; (b) how differential interests, in particular caste and gender, are represented, negotiated and contended ; (c) experiential aspects at varied levels of the collectives and forms of exclusions. The study will focus on the post-1980s period but locate it historically as well as within the ongoing public debate on land use and agrarian distress in Kuttanad and on the future of traditional industries such as coir, in Alleppey and the diverse and contending narratives of development in contemporary Kerala.

- Methodology: After the identification of varied forms of organisations, interviews have been conducted with leaders, including individual interviews and FGDs with women activists of older institutions (established Trade Unions and forums of agricultural workers, coir workers, fish workers, forums of middle and large farmers), mainly in Kuttanad, as well as leaders of newer forms of organizations linked with the local governance processes - panchayat presidents and secretaries, NREGA forum, Kudumbashree, Mahila Sangam.

- Status: Field work is in progress.

DISPLACEMENT AND RESETTLEMENT:

Measuring Institutionalized Capacities for Development Projects in India

- Sponsoring Agency: Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi
- Project Director Prof. Kalpana Kannabiran, Regional Director
- Associated Academic Staff Dr. Sujit Kumar Mishra, Associate Professor

- Expected Date of Project Completion: January 2015
- Objectives:
 - a) To examine what went wrong in converting the resettlement policies of Orissa, Andhra Pradesh and Chhattisgarh into practice;
 - b) to examine the rationale behind variation in project specific policies on Resettlement and Rehabilitation (R and R); and
 - c) to examine the key factors (policies, institutions and information) that determine differences in outcome of Rehabilitation
- Methodology: The study will adopt a three-pronged approach for collection of information: (a) a field survey; (b) collection of data from secondary sources and discussion with officials in government, non-officials and local leaders in the study area; and (c) Focus Group Discussion with various stakeholders. The interviews will aim to capture the effects of displacement on the studied community, strategies employed by local people to deal with the situation. For this analysis, the qualitative answers will be coded into a set of defining variables. All variables will be cross-checked against each other to search for potential trends in the material. FGDs in the villages

(separately for men and women) include interviews with sarpanch, block development officers, leaders in the village including Self Help Group (SHG) leaders, officials of different banks in the concerned area. Specific case studies will also be undertaken as part of the study.

- Status: Checklist preparation for preliminary survey is completed

MARKETING OF GI PRODUCTS:

Willingness to Pay for GI Products in India: The Case of Darjeeling Tea and Pochampally Ikat

- Sponsoring Agency ICSSR under Research Promotion Scheme
- Project Director Dr. Soumya Vinayan, Assistant Professor
- Expected Date of Project Completion: June 2014

Objectives:

- a) To determine and estimate the WTP of consumers for origin labeled / GI products.
- b) To estimate the WTP for Darjeeling Tea (agricultural product) and Pochampally Ikat (non-agricultural product).

- Methodology:
 - a) Experimental Design: The present study made use of the tools of survey design, statistical experimental design, experimental economics theory and the random nth price auction to elicit consumers' willingness to pay for products of geographical origin; registered GI; and with and without GI logo.
 - b) Experimental Units: The participants for the auction will be selected through advertisements in and around centres of higher education in Hyderabad. Higher education institutes are chosen because they best represent national and local as well as international consumers, given the characteristics of the GI products for which the consumers' WTP are being elicited and estimated.
- Status: Data entry completed by March 2014 and report writing for all States is in progress.
- Sponsoring Agency Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi
- Project Director Dr. Pratyusna Patnaik, Assistant Professor (till 8 February 2014)
- Expected date of project completion : December 2014
- Objectives:
 - a) To explore the differential patterns of dependency of groups, based on gender, caste and ethnicity on forest;
 - b) To analyse the implications of presence and/or absence of groups based on gender, caste and ethnicity on forest governance, in terms of better forest conservation and equitable benefit distribution;
 - c) To explore the exclusionary practices that affect the involvement of groups based on gender, caste and ethnicity in forest governance.
- Methodology: A combination of case study and interview methods was used for the study. The empirical work for the research project has been carried out in the state of Orissa. From among the 30 districts of Orissa, Nayagarh district is chosen as the study district, from which the villages for empirical observation were drawn. Adopting Purposive Sampling method, two villages were chosen from the Nayagarh district. From the two chosen villages, 50 households are selected from each village purposively, ensuring that the sample households should cover different caste and tribal groups. From among the total 100 chosen households, two respondents, i.e. a male and a female respondent are drawn from each household. Therefore, in total, 100 male and 100 female respondents are interviewed from the two selected villages. The total sample of the study constituted 3 sets of respondents: Office bearers of the FRCs, and other officials concerned with implementation of FRA, 2006 in the region; 200 respondents chosen from the 100 households of the two villages ; Other key respondents, such as local Panchayat representatives, school teachers, members of youth clubs, and representatives of NGOs related with participatory forest governance in the region

- Status: Empirical data collection is over. Data compilation and tabulation is also over. Data analysis and Report writing are in progress.

Financial Globalisation and India: Internal and External Dimensions

- Sponsoring Agency: Indian Council of Social Science

Research under Sponsored Research Programme

- Project Director Dr. Rohit, Assistant Professor, Jawaharlal Nehru University (through CSD, Hyderabad)
- Associated Academic Staff Dr. Prasenjit Bose Mr. Kingshuk Roy
- Date of Project Completion
November 2015
- Objectives: The Project aims at assessing the extent of “financialisation” of the Indian economy and its implications, through an analysis of its macroeconomic variables as well as the behaviour of banks, other financial institutions, non-financial corporate sector and households. The external dimension, in terms of the quantum and nature of capital flows and its impact on the exchange rate and the external sector balance, shall also be analysed. The project shall examine whether the process of “financialisation” in India carries the risks of increasing financial fragility and crisis, as was witnessed in the advanced economies and many other developing countries under financial globalisation, and draw possible policy conclusions with regard to financial regulation.

- Methodology:

- a) The research would involve analysis of global financial and macroeconomic data as well as macro-economic and financial data for the Indian economy related to overall and sectoral growth, investment, consumption, credit, corporate finance, household savings, capital flows, balance of payments etc. In some cases, macro-economic and financial data of OECD and other Emerging Economies can be used. The period of analysis will mainly be from 1990 to the current period
- b) Standard sources for global financial and economic data are the IMF, BIS, World Bank, UNCTAD and OECD; Data from the Mckinsey Global Institute and the RAVE database of Credit Suisse may also have to be accessed. For India the data sources would be RBI, Ministry of Finance, SEBI, CSO, NSSO, CMIE Prowess etc. Most of this data is available online; In some cases, like the IMF Corporate Vulnerability Database or CMIE Prowess database would have to be purchased.

- c) Statistical Tables and Charts shall be used extensively; Mathematical modeling and Econometric analysis may be undertaken.

- Status: Review of literature/data sources and theoretical analysis are in progress.

ADVOCACY

The Council organises seminars, workshops and discourses on important issues of social development

Seminar/Workshop

CSD- New Delhi

The Emerging Challenges of Indian Agriculture with special reference to Institutional Credit and Farm Distress

- Dates: 6-7 June, 2013
- Seminar Coordinators:
Dr. T. Haque and Ms. Ankita Goyal
- Objectives:
 - a) to discuss the problems of small and marginal farmers in accessing institutional credit and
 - b) to work out strategies for improving small farmers' access to institutional credit for productivity enhancement in agriculture.

- Important participants:

Shri Tariq Anwar, Hon'ble Minister of State for Agriculture and Food Processing;
Dr. Prakash Bakshi, Chairman, NABARD;
Mr. JNL Srivastava, Managing Director, IFFCO foundation,
Mr. Y. C. Nanda, former Chairman NABARD,
Prof. Utsa Patnaik, JNU,
Prof. Ramesh Chand, NCAP,
Dr. Biswajit Dhar, RIS,
Dr. Dalip Singh, Additional Secretary to Govt. Of India, Dept. Of Agriculture and Co-operation
Mr. Sunrinder Singla, former Finance Minister of Punjab.

- Conclusions and Recommendations:

- a) Despite a significant increase in the institutional credit and flow to agriculture in the past few years, small and marginal farmers do not generally have access to institutional credit, especially from Commercial Banks.
- b) Due to the increase in cost of production, small and marginal farmers are finding it difficult to continue in agriculture, especially when the institutional credit facility is highly inadequate and inefficient.
- c) Even though, according to the government, a large number of Kisan Credit Cards have been issued, in reality, as evident from various field researches, majority of the farmers did not receive the cards so far.

- d) Due to changes in the definition of agriculture in recent years, it is the large farmers and some agri-business companies, who are cornering the major benefit of institutional credit.
- e) It was observed that the women-headed households were more deprived of credit than male headed households. It implies that the destitute and needy are being excluded and thus inclusive growth is not happening.
- f) The common way ahead, that was suggested, was offering remunerative prices to the farmers for crops and the strengthening of cooperatives and banks to give easier and timely access to loans to small and marginal farmers.

International Summit on Empowerment of Rural Women jointly organized by CSD and AIWC

- Dates: 2-3rd, September, 2013
- Seminar Coordinators:

Dr. T. Haque, Ms. Bina Jain and Ms. Jaya Lekshmi Nair

- Objectives:

To discuss and identify:

- a) The nature and extent of gender disparities in development in developing countries
- b) The status of land rights of women
- c) Role of local level institutions, including SHGs, co-operatives, local self-government etc. in empowering rural women
- d) Status and constraints to rural women's access to employment, education and health
- e) Field level success stories in different countries in empowering rural women

- Important Participants:

Smt. Shiela Dixit, Chief Minister, New Delhi

Dr. M. S. Swaminathan, President, MS Swaminathan Foundation

Ms. Lise Grande, UN Resident Coordinator and UNDP Resident Representative

Dr. Rebecca Tavares, Country Representative, UN Women Office
Mr. Tim Hanstad, President & CEO, Landesa

Dr. Peter E Kenmore, FAO Representative

Mr. Eng. Wassfi Hassan, Secretary General, AARDO

Dr. P. K. Joshi, Director IFPRI, in South Asia

Prof. Nitya Rao, Prof. of Gender and Development, University of East

Anglia

Prof. Ritu Priya, Professor, Centre for Social Medicine and Community, JNU

Prof. Madhulekha Bhattacharya, Professor and Head, Dept. of Community Health and Administration, National Institute of Health and Family Welfare

- Conclusions and Recommendations:

a) All rural women, single or married or divorced, should be entitled to own at least 10 cents of homestead land in their names, which will provide them basic right to shelter plus some additional space to grow/rear fruits, vegetables, poultry, goat etc. for food and nutritional security, for which the Governments concerned should make necessary legal and administrative arrangements.

b) All women farmers should be entitled to obtain certain basic inputs and support services from the Government in a subsidized manner.

- c) All girls in the age group of 5-20 years should have a right to free quality education up to higher secondary level for which the Governments of respective countries should make appropriate legal and administrative provisions.
- d) Government, in developing countries, should make adequate investment to create physical infrastructure of schools up to the higher secondary level along with trained / skilled teachers, where both girls and boys can get educated.
- e) The rural health care facilities, drinking water and sanitation should be adequately improved, which will make both women and men healthy and more productive.
- f) Rural women should be encouraged and assisted to form self help groups, co-operatives and associations which will empower them at home and outside, both socially and politically.
- g) The success stories of some schemes in empowering rural women in each country should be properly documented, publicized and replicated on wider scale.
- h) All national governments should create a statistical system for collecting gender disaggregated data which will help plan strategies and actions for empowerment of rural women.

- i) There is need for a coordinated action by all concerned, namely government, civil societies, international organizations to do more research on issues affecting rural women's empowerment and work out strategies and action plans for removing gender disparities in development as one of post-2015 millennium development goals.

Ms. Smriti Talwar, The World Bank, New Delhi,

Mr. Rajeev Chawla, Principal Secretary, Govt. of Karnataka
Ms. Rita Sinha, Former Secretary, Deptt. Of Land Resources, Govt. of India

- Conclusions and Recommendations:

- Get a Core Team in each State and start functioning/ collecting and analyzing data on various indicators
- State Teams should have a timeline and TAG members will be monitoring the progress in each closely and on daily / weekly basis through telephonic conversation, video conferencing, email etc.
- State teams can approach any of the TAG members for any clarification or help.
- TAG members themselves will discuss the methodology or mode of operation and communicate to the state teams.
- Additional research may be conducted and if new relevant indicators are identified TAG can be consulted.
- Meeting with State officials for helping states can be organized by Dr. Haque.
- Request letter planned to be issued for accessing data from Secretary, DoLR, GoI, Planning Commission, National Statistical Institute etc. if required. Dr. Haque will follow up.
- Tenure Typology must be derived for general as well as region specific.

3rd Land Governance Assessment Framework (LGAF) Workshop

- Dates: 6-9th January, 2014
- Workshop Coordinators:
 - Dr. T. Haque, CSD
 - Dr. Suman Chandra, NIRD
- Venue: NIRD, Hyderabad
- Objective: The main objective was to reassess the progress made and to consolidate the learning's from the LGAF process so far, for a uniform understanding of the way forward
- Important Participants:
 - Shri M.V. Rao, Director-General, NIRD
 - Dr. Klaus Deininger, Lead Economist, The World Bank, Washington, D.C.
 - Ms. Thea Hilhorst, The World Bank, Washington, D.C.
 - Ms. Giovanna Prennushi, The World Bank, Washington, D.C.
 - Ms. Smriti Talwar, The World Bank, New Delhi
 - Mr. Vinod Agrawal, Principal Secretary, Revenue, Govt. of Andhra Pradesh
 - Dr. Naresh Saxena, Former Secretary, Planning Commission, Govt. of India
 - Mr. I.P.Gauam, Principal Secretary, Govt. of Gujarat
 - Mr. Meenakshisundaram, Former Secretary, Deptt. Of Rural Development, Govt. of India

Justice Bhraukha, Former Judge, Patna High Court
Ms. Rita Sinha, Former Secretary, Deptt. Of Land Resources, Govt. of India

• Conclusions and Recommendations:

- a) A manual with explanatory notes and updated glossary should be shared with the state coordinators
- b) The current practice of holding weekly Skype calls with CSD and the World Bank may continue as they found this extremely helpful in gaining conceptual clarity and in communicating any issues in a periodic fashion.
- c) A meeting with TAG members and State coordinators be setup in Delhi on February 15th.
- d) Care has to be taken in strengthening and finalising the tenure typology, institutional mapping and other components of the inception report that will be used in the final report.

4th Land Governance Assessment Framework (LGAF) Workshop

- Date: 14th February, 2014
- Venue: IIC, New Delhi
- Workshop Coordinators:
Dr. T. Haque and Ms. Jaya Nair
- Objective: The main objective of the workshop was to monitor the progress in implementation of LGAF across the selected states in India, to discuss the next steps and responsibility for preparing the national report and the time schedule.

- Important Participants:

Ms. Vandana Kumari Jena, Secretary, DoLR, Ministry of Rural Development, Govt. of India; Dr. Klaus Deininger, LGAF Team leader, The World Bank, Washington; Mr. Shankar Narayan, The World Bank, Delhi; Ms. Smriti Talwar, The World Bank, Delhi

- Conclusions and Recommendations:
 - a) Conduct an empirical study in Delhi to establish the linkages between transnational bio-cell Industry and local IVF Clinics.
 - b) File a consumer protection case in the death of Yuma Sherpa during egg donation.
 - c) Make sure that women groups are being heard by ICMR in the process of forming ART Act 2013.

Challenges of Accelerated and Inclusive Economic Growth in Bihar and Jharkhand

(in collaboration with the Council for Development of Bihar and Jharkhand)

Seminar on Challenges of Accelerated and Inclusive Economic Growth in Bihar and Jharkhand

- Date: 8th March, 2014
- Venue: Durgabai Deshmukh Lecture Hall
- Seminar Coordinator: Dr. T. Haque and Prof. Kamta Prasad
- Objective:
 - a) To discuss the key challenges of accelerated growth in Bihar and Jharkhand
 - b) To discuss whether the present growth process is inclusive and, if not, how to make it more inclusive
- Important Participants

Prof. Abhijit Sen, Member, Planning Commission
Prof. Muchkund Dubey, President, CSD
Prof. Kamta Prasad, President, CDBJ

Mr. B.K Sinha, Former Secretary, Deptt. of Rural Development, Govt. of India

Mr. A.N.P. Sinha, Chairman, Bihar Finance Commission and Former Secretary, Deptt. Of Panchayati Raj, Govt. of India

Ms. Suman Kaushik, Advisor, Ministry of Rural Development, Govt. of India

- Conclusions and Recommendations:

- a) Bihar needs special package and special status. Besides, improvement in law and order; governance; people-centric political formation; and women centric development approach were required to facilitate accelerated growth.
- b) In addition, small farmer-friendly institutional support system would be very helpful for the development of both Bihar and Jharkhand.
- c) Further technological innovations; SRI methods of cultivation; non-farm development; rural electrification; road; education and skill up gradation; tenancy reform; drought proofing; proper credit supply; flood control; decentralized and improved governance are some of the ways to facilitate holistic development in Bihar and Jharkhand.
- d) Moreover, human resource development and structural problem of inequality need to be addressed through appropriate policies and priorities.
